Compulsory REVISION comments	I found this study very helpful and interesting. It provides useful information for the prevalence of gram negative bacteria in UTI and their susceptibility in antibiotics. The materials and method are able to be repeated easily. The sample is large enough. The determination, isolation and identification were took place methodologically right. The susceptibility test with the modified Kirby-Bauer disc agar diffusion method is the typical way which is widely used in several laboratories with excellent results. The tables are understandable. The references are satisfactory	I agree with the reviewer and have affected the necessary changes. Thank you
