

Editor's Comment:

The authors need to check all the scientific names in the paper and state them correct such as Mugil cephalus (First is the genus name and always start with the capital letter and second is the species name and always is in small letters).

Authors unless use the word starting their sentences, they do not need to put feed in capital (they put Feed in the sentence and it is not necessary to use capital letter there unless the Feed is a brand name). Finally, figures need to be improved, some of them squeeze from the sides and text in the figures clearly show the sizing issues with their figures.
