| CompulsoryREVISIONcomments | 1. Paper says that in the short run GDP growth rate has a positive statistically significant impact on national saving with coefficient 42%. About the long run coefficient 31% is clear. 42% of the ground should be more clearer.2. Paper says at "4.2 Recommendations", "The government should increase national savings to increase investment, rather increasing investment to increase national savings." How does the Government act the policy? Pakistan is not a communist nation. |                                                                                                                                                                               |
