| Compulsory REVISION comments | AbstractThe sentence "About 43.02% of the respondents..." is not clear.Also "About 43.02%..." is not a good expression.The last sentence "Therefore, individuals..." should be clarified. The reasons for the policy aimed at alleviating poverty cannot be explained only by not taking risks by farmers. MethodologyPlease, check the sentence "The State has a land area of about 14,788,723 Square Kilometers (km<sup>2</sup>)". It should be much less (actually, one thousand times) according to the reference you put. The section "Safety-First Model" cannot be understood without reading the cited sources. The first half of this important methodological section should be rewritten. Section 2.3.3 Ordered Probit Regression ModelGreene uses "multinomial logit/probit model", not multinational. Section ConclusionYou write "All these will automatically make high risk-averse fish farmers to be low risk-averse."But this is only your suggestion. You did not study this policy implication and did not cite studies of other |                                                                                                                                                                                             |
