PART 2:

Editor'S comments on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to final evaluator's comments
The paper deals with important and interesting problems. The paper is written correctly in terms of its factual content and methodology. The authors introduced the changes suggested in the review to a satisfactory extent. However, the paper would need to have a more in-depth review of literature, in particular the publications written in English. The central part of the paper appears to be too brief. The paper should have ended with conclusions, where more reference may be made to the results of empirical research and the theoretical background. The final part of the paper (conclusions) also appears to be too brief. Also, the introduction should contain a clearly stated and specified key aim of the paper, i.e. such as „the aim of the paper is to...”. In general, the paper corresponds with the character of the journal. I recommend its publication in the present form, as my final evaluation is positive. The final decision on the publication, however, should be made by the editor-in-chief. Additionally I suggest the authors should take into account the minor remarks I have made.
