| Compulsory REVISION comments | A case of some interest. It points out the importance of clinical evaluation of all cases undergoing surgery. The authors state that: 34 Male Circumcision is one of the oldest and one of the most commonly performed surgical 35 procedures in practice today. It is commonly practiced and will continue to occur for 36 religious, cultural and medical reasons.1- They are wrong on the highlighted point. Circumcision is not widely practiced in Northern Europe. Besides the United Nations Convention on Children's Right state that children should not undergo unnecessary operative interventions. Circumcision is often unnecessary, The paper is rather fluently written. It needs some linguistic revision. |                                                                                                                                                                               |
