In general, the main objective of the manuscript is of great importance. However, there are some defects on the manuscript which should be improved by authors, such as: 1. The abstract of manuscript is too long. The authors need to improve it systematically. 2. As the authors claimed that the data of experimental work were analysed using statistical method. All results of statistical computation need to be included in the manuscript, especially, the graphs of statistical analysis. Please do it carefully. 3. The data of fatty acid composition of pine nut kernel (Table 5) is better presented in graph format rather than table format. 4. The conclusion is not specific. Please re-write it properly.
