

Editor's Comment:

The author fairly attended to the reviewers queries. However some shortcomings were still noted in the revised article V2 as highlighted beneath.

Title:

One 'ethanol' needs to be deleted from the title.

ABSTRACT

A missing link (possibly .. in) between sources and its. Delete the numerous 'is' and/or recast in the past or in active voice while noting the wrong use of singular and plural (These is?). Aimed as used is neither in line with the study aim nor appropriate for the intended possible benefit(s) of the study hence should be recast.

Introduction section line 88:

For?? Wrong capital use and wrong use of for instead of from?

Aim and Focus?? Why not just Aim??

focuses? Write in active voice or in the past

The conclusion should be in line with the study title. As written is more of a commentary and unrelated to addressing the study aim as entitled. Authors should rightly caption it conclusion and not concluding remarks. This is supposed to be an academic report and not a commentary hence the various sections from the title through the abstract, introduction through the conclusion must be close knitted.

These noted shortcomings need to be addressed before further publication processes.
