Compulsory REVISION comments
Minor REVISION comments	In this paper authors have mentioned that the Saint Martin Island possesses a very unique soil and environmental characteristics. It needed to be documented about the carbon and organic matter percentage far years ago for the proper measurement of carbon sequestration but the work was not completed. Authors included about soil bulk density, wet soil mass and dry soil, soil mass, and carbon stock indifferent vertical scale that may leads to better understanding about carbon storage and sequestration analysis in the future by comparing this data which may open a new windows of knowledge of carbon storage flux and global warming. • The study is very interesting and manuscript is almost structured properly. • Following amendments are needed- Lines 25-89: References are not placed in sequential order All Sub-heading mentioned in the manuscript should be numbered.
Optional/General comments	Manuscript is interesting and structured properly. The review manuscript is recommended for publication after incorporating above suggestion / comments.
