

Editor's Comment:

The journal is new and hence quality should be of utmost priority. Does the journal have a copy editing service? My point is whether all grammatical mistakes and formatting (references) will be carried out by the journal services or not.

The idea proposed by the author is good but the quality is not good due to the following reasons:

1. The title has to be revised. (for example A model of a computable deaf machine)
2. The abstract is to be corrected(Both grammatically and conceptually)
3. The entire paper is to be corrected grammatically.

Kindly see to it that the corrections are made before the paper is published. In my opinion, the journal should not publish a poorly written paper.
