

Editor's Comment:

The object of study is relevant because it considers social determinants in the field of health and performs a broad analysis of the research problem. The title represents the content of the article and the abstract, after the modifications suggested by the reviewers, is clear. In consideration of structure, the manuscript corresponds to the structure of the scientific method. The justification is based on the literature and presents the motivation of the authors to carry out the study. The objective is clear and is answered by the results found by the study. The method is coherent to the research problem and is described in detail; in addition, the fact that it is a multi-method increases the internal validity in the study. Regarding the results, the authors made the modifications suggested by the reviewers; The language used in the text is clear, but revision of the English language is extremely necessary. For the above, the manuscript is able to be published because the authors have made the corrections that were pointed out by the reviewers and are inserted in a thematic of relevance.
