Compulsory REVISION comments	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. The manuscript may be considered as a "scientific note", if possible</li> <li>2. The methodology is not clear</li> <li>3. In the antimicrobial activity study, the negative control (ethanol) was not tested; only the positive controls for both antibacterial and antifungal activities had been tested along with the test concentrations</li> <li>4. The preparation of standard solution and the test concentrations used for the antioxidant activities are not mentioned in the materials and methods section</li> </ol>	The methodology has been presented in a better form for reproducibility of the study. They show the standard solution and the extract concentration examined. The negative control was tested but wasn't presented in the study as they were all nil. These corrections are highlighted in yellow in the manuscript. Thank you
