| Compulsory REVISION comments | Author/s intended to investigate anti-proliferative effect of lime juice on ovarian proliferation. This study is indeed interesting however it is lack of substance. If the authors wanted to prove that lime-juice has an anti-proliferative effect on ovarian proliferation, immunohistological study/protein expression study by for example Western blotting is needed to look for the level of expression of proliferative ovarian marker ex Ki-67. Histology alone is insufficient. Author should also measure plasma estrogen and progesterone level as they are important to exert a negative feedback effect on the pituitary, thus could affect LH and FSH level Introduction- need improvement. Author should discuss related to the topics. It's too wide M&M; testis is mentioned! | |
