Considering that virus has a facility to reach humans through the contact with animals, which could be infected with any symptoms in the begin of the disease, causing a real risk to them. Therefore the rabies surveillance should be continued in affected areas.
Minor REVISION comments	I would like to felicitate the authors of this work that aimed the control of the rabies virus and the protection of the population in constant contact with animals known as rabies susceptibles and transmitters.
Optional/General comments	I have to agree to maintain the rabies vaccination for peoples in contact with transmitters in areas with endemics known. Please clarify the ethical issues if any
