PART 2:

FINAL EVALUATOR'S comments on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to final evaluator's comments
A reinterpretation of the same shows that most requests were not met, only being made specific changes that added little to the manuscript, which already had many flaws. I maintain my earlier recommendation that research portrays a local reality that could not generalize their findings. The presentation of the manuscript leaves much to be desired, mainly present as a "report" on essential parts, such as the introduction of the question. The method does not bring innovation and results also requires change. Placing graphics so great, with very few information is completely dispensable. If the study is to support a hypothesis using chi-square tests should prioritize this information. The article is huge, especially the results. The conclusion is poor and does not show the manuscript contribution.	Thank you for your comments on this manuscript. The comments have been addressed as follows: The presentation of the result has been changed from graphics to tables in a concise manner. Conclusion has been re-stated to show the manuscript contribution. Two more hypotheses: relationship between respondents' marital status and their perception of NHIS services; as well as relationship between respondents' marital status and their satisfaction with NHIS services were also added. Thank you for your continuous support on the manuscript.
