PART 2:

FINAL EVALUATOR'S comments on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to final evaluator's comments
Unfortunately this manuscript is not suitable for publication in its current format. As previously said – the work is good but the manner in which the manuscript is written still poses problems in terms of scientific language and writing style. The technical aspects of the document also needs attention as there are various typographical errors, spacing issues and differences in fonts used in the reference list. References should also be attended too – the list as well as in the text. The abstract has not been changed to be in line with the revised document. The statement on the role of radiotherapy in the treatment of women with cervical cancer is rather strange as RT plays a crucial role in the treatment of women with advanced cancer.
