PART 2:

FINAL EVALUATOR'S comments on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to final evaluator's comments
1. Water Management is defined as the control and movement of Meta resources that is to minimize the damage to life and property and to maximize efficient beneficial use [8]. 2. One advantage of the good water management of dams and levees is to reduce of the risk of harm which due to flooding [8]. 3. It is clear that the irrigate water management systems make the limited water supplies for agriculture most efficient used. These three sentences are grammatically wrong. I believe the author(s) is not well-grounded in the use of English. I requested in the first review that the author(s) should make corrections and send the paper to a native of English for proofreading before sending it for second reviewer In general, the Introduction is full of too many grammatical errors. 4. Some of basic concepts and related results to fuzzy numbers and some of their arithmetic operations, triangular fuzzy numbers and some of algebraic operations are reviewed in this section. This sentence is grammatically wrong. 5. In the original paper, the author(s) used the APA method of citation/reference. In the reversed paper, the author(s) used the Council of Science Editor method. This shows that the author(s) does not understand both methods. The author(s) seem to be confused as to what nature of corrections to do when I mentioned that the APA method he used in the original paper was poorly applied. NOTE: The author(s) did not address the two issues I raised in the first review. 1. The author should send the paper for proofreading and correction, before resending it for review. As it is, there are too many grammatical errors. 3. Citations are not done according to APA 6th or 7th Edition. Author should consult any of this APA editions and correct the citations/references in the paper
