| Compulsory REVISION comments | The article contains repetitive sentences that should be omitted.It contains also experimental routine details that could be deleted and substituted by proper elementary references.Experiments should be repeated to obtain better photosMMP-2. ELISA would be used to detect accurate levels of MMP-2 to strengthen the conclusionAKT band should be further verified using either specific ELISA or Western blot analysis | We would find and delete experimental routine details, repetitive sentences and rewrite the sentences.We will try to develop ELISA assay to detect accurate levels of MMP-2, AKT in the future. In the scope of this paper, we did not do ELISA assay, and Western blot analysis for AKT. |
| Minor REVISION comments      | Language mistakes should be corrected                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | I have reviewed and checked if found.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
