Compulsory REVISION comments
Minor REVISION comments	The paper aims to analyze farmers' risk attitudes and way to mitigate it. The authors could present more information in introduction on risks in the agricultural context, as well as, strategies to manage them. In addition, the authors need pay attention in the strategies to mitigate the risks. Table 4 show only the most frequency strategies, but it is not clear if they are the most useful. Others general comments are in the file.	We decided not to write too much on these areas in order to avoid lengthy write-up. It is worthy of note that this study is not focusing on the risk proper but the risk attitudes. Besides, information on risks in agriculture and coping strategies are already many in the literature. The study did not capture how useful/effective each of the strategies is but the most used strategies among the respondents. It is believed that these strategies are the most used because of their importance to them as indicated by the respondents. Other comments in the file have been attended to.
