| Compulsory REVISION comments | The paper reflects a scholarly effort with a good theoretical build up Abstract should be re-written to reflect what subsists abinitio, methodology and findings from literature that justifies his arguments. It should begin with a brief background to the study and end with recommendations/implications. The study has no clear introduction. Readers may find it difficult to clearly find the fit between the contexts of discuss. Methodology: this is completely missing from the study. A section may be necessary to clarify how the study was put together. It would be good to highlight recent works on this subject as 90% of authors cited are rather old. | To my opinion the abstract is clear and exhaustive. The paper is subject of interest for the readers and is new compared to other papers because it individuates a new mode of socialism, a new mode of production. In the introduction I have briefly cleared the implication of the study. |
| Minor REVISION comments      | There is a need to go through the recommendations made in order to thoughtfully implement them and improve the quality of the paper.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
