Compulsory REVISION comments	1. If you think Universities have to play a big role in creating future smart cities, then you must give an outline/guideline of making them act as smart universities to play the major role of change agents in Indian context ; 2. The article reflects just compilation of some data without any logical flow or action plan; 3. A concrete blue print of smart university & then how it should be incorporated in social policy/governance to design /create smart cities should be provided; 4. The author's intention should be very clear- whether he/she wants the smart cities to be sustainable in India or anywhere in general.	Certain characteristics that universities need to exhibit towards smartness have been mentioned in the paper. As vital institutions of any city, they surely are major change agents; hence, the importance of these characteristics. The paper's major emphasis is a set of different characteristics for universities which are closely linked to economic and social sustainability. Some examples of universities which are making serious efforts towards being lean have been stated in the paper. Examples of foreign universities have been stated in the paper. Smart universities are needed across the world.
