PART 1: Review Comments

	Reviewer's comment	Author's comment (if agreed with reviewer, correct the manuscript and highlight that part in the manuscript. It is mandatory that authors should write his/her feedback here)
Compulsory REVISION comments	Please explain if there may be any toxic concern(s) to human body regarding the self-nanoemulsifying drug delivery systems (SNEDDS).	There is no known or reported safety concern with any of the ingredients or their combination at least at the concentrations employed. Sesame seeds are widely known and consumed as food. Caprylic/Capric Triglyceride, Cremophor EL and PEG-400 are all established excipients that have found application in Pharmaceutical industry, and have also been widely used in studies reported in many different reputable Journals and publications some of which have been cited in my article as references e.g. Zhang et al. , (2008), Abdalla et al. , (2008), Joshi et al. , (2008), Tripathi et al. , (2016) etc.
Minor REVISION comments	It would be a stronger story, if some pharmacological data, such as bioavailability of the optimized ibuprofen SNEDDS, could be added to the Results part.	More studies are on-going; others will be undertaken in the future. The aspect submitted in this article is one aspect that has been concluded and available.
