Now the manuscript is better but still there are some small mistakes that need a minor revision: first is the use of English – the manuscript should be revised by a native speaker and second in the results section there is no need to highlight anterior, posterior, right or left eye disorders (the information in the text is clear enough what it describes) and at last there are some little mistakes like “Two hundred of the 228 eyes were normal. There were 98 right (86%) and 102 left eyes (89.5%) eyes examined with 28 eyes of 14 eyes (persons?) exhibiting ophthalmic abnormalities.” Or with table’s numeration in the text.
