Title of the Manuscript:	PRECISION OF ORTHOKERATOLOGY
Type of Article:	Short Communication

PART 2:

FINAL EVALUATOR'S comments on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to final evaluator's comments
The paper is very confusing. It is again not clear are these recommendations on which the entire paper is based, a product of independent study done by the authors or just compiled advices based on the literature sources. If it is based on the study (which may be concluded based on the given content disclaimer), then it is necessary to provide material and method section where it should be written how many patients participated, how was the fitting procedure done and what were the results. Also, it is not recommended when citing to give direct quotes such as "The effectivity of orthokeratology is " it significantly changes the corneal curvature and corneal thickness and it can be showed by corneal topography." Furthermore, this sentence is not ended with quotation marks, so it is not clear where the citation ends. Please, avoid using exact citation, and quotation marks, because the text should be written in your own words. References are corrected, but again they are not uniform, please look for APA or similar style and provide full, uniform references in the list at the end. If you chose the numbered style, then please, sort the references in order of appearing in the text. You can not put [1,11] references at the beginning, it should be [1,2]. I also, again, strongly recommend for you to read a short communication articles published in this or other journals to get the better feeling of how the paper should look like in the sense of formatting and WHAT information is necessary to provide.	RESPECTED SIR, THIS PAPER IS OF SHORT COMMUNICATION. WORK OUT ON PATIENTS IS NOT DONE. REFERENCES ARE MODIFIED AND PUNCTUATION MARKS ARE CORRECTED AS PER THE SUGGESTIONS. THE FULL TEXT IS WRITTEN IN OWN WORDS, NOT A SINGLE SENTENCE IS COPIED FROM ANY BOOK.
