

Editor's Comment:

Going through the various contributions made by the reviewers and the corrections given by the authors.

I would suggest the following:

1. Check the referencing styles and make sure they conform to the journal recommended format.
2. Lines 36, 47, 55... Check the references both in citing and listing. When et al., are used it is usually in italics e.g. McConnell et al., 2007.
3. More recent references should be read and cited in the article.
4. If these issues are all addressed properly it would be good for publications.

Editor's Details:

Dr. Olalekan David Adeniyi
Department of Chemical Engineering,
Federal University of Technology, Nigeria