

Editorial Comments:

The Authors must polish the English language in the paper and carefully check all the cited references. For instance the titles of refs. [6] and [7] are the same that is incorrect.

Author's Feedback:

Thank you so much for the remarks on my manuscript. I think that the English language in the paper is good and correct. I used the same notations and terminology as in previously published papers in this field.

As regards to the references, I have checked them again and they are all OK except the reference [7] where the only mismatch was in the title of the reference and everything else (the authors as well as the journal citation) is correct. You are absolutely right in pointing out on this. This is a mistake that happens when you have a list of same authors one after another. I have now changed the title of the manuscript and it is marked by yellow. Also, in the last reference [35], I have changed fermi with Fermi which is also marked by yellow.
