Title of the Manuscript:	Exact Calculation of the Internal Energy of the Ideal Gas in Statistical Mechanics
Type of Article:	Short Communication

PART 2:

FINAL EVALUATOR'S comments on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to final evaluator's comments
I explained in my previous review that the claims in this manuscript are based on misunderstandings of how to bridge between statistical mechanics and thermodynamics. There are no "ideal gas paradoxes". The manuscript is wrong and should thus not be published. I am surprised that the author hasn't responded to any of my remarks.
